First Of Year Sees End Of Fall Bean Crop Picking

Croch And Thomas Busy Picking Their Ritis Island Lands For Next Crop

While there has been plenty of beans to meet market demand at a zigzag price, the supply the latter part of this week and next will be decided on the decline, and will be only slightly above the price.

Some farmers who may have some late beans may reap a higher price. High price on beans the past week was $2.25 per bushel.

Report is that while the United States Sugar Company is harvesting cane it has found some patches that very low in sugar content and hardly worth the processing. The why is a question being asked.

The new Diesel engines are working on the freight runs and switching work on the F. E. C., are meeting with great approval of all operators and shippers.

Robert Croch, Sr. and "Mutt" Thomas who own and operate the 600 tillable acres on Ritis Island, which stands out in the water west of town, have about completed the pumping of the flood waters which have covered the land for several months past, due to the broken dikes.

The two are to begin plowing early next week preparatory to planting crops.

Ritis Island has long been noted for the richness of their soils, and the excellent crops raised on them. Ritis was one of the earliest cane some of the earliest crop venture work in the Everglades.

Shipments for the week ended December 15.

"Bo" Jameson To Prepare For Methodist Ministry

Rev. and Mrs. J. O. Jameson of Miami, were Thursday guests of the First Methodist Church, coming to attend the Garden Club annual banquet; and Rev. Jameson to visit around and about.

In conversation Rev. Jameson related that when Rev. Bill Boggs assigned him to the Altamont Church, he had handed him a right smart and arduous job, which included the building of a new church, which is making most satisfactory progress of construction.

Kirk Jameson is now a junior in the Jackson High School and for the past two years has been a member of the school band, a charter member of the District Youth Fellowship, and represents the school in an inter-city organization, Indiana.

He is preparing to follow in the footsteps of his fathers, and become a Methodist minister.

Mr. Jameson was given a warm welcome by his former teachers, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Rich. Mr. Rich was lodges president for many years, which the daily consumer must pay, and his high grad produce, must waste in the field or groves.

Present Henry O. Earwood, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has presented to his Board of Directors, a proposal, which has met with their approval and endorsement, with consideration of the State Federal and Marketing Administrators, in endeavor to bring about a correction of conditions, which might give Floridians a better break than they are now experiencing.

The text of President Earwood's proposal, as he expressed it is as follows:

"It has long been my contention that too little importance has been given to the medium of distribution of the agricultural products of Florida.

Plans are now underway whereby interested parties will create a new field west of the city of Delray, for the production of school grounds. These park improvements include an enclosed field, an excellent baseball diamond, grand stands, announcing system, and other conveniences, including a swimming pool for white parents.

The field will be the home base for the Florida Red Wings, the crack colored team, which has made such fine records.

Everglades Park Project Given High Priority

Ernest F. Cox sometimes called and designated as the "Father of the Everglades National Park," who occupies a house in the southwestern tip of Florida, the past week, was given a signal honor at a gathering in Miami, where Amos Nehrling, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Association, presented him with the George Robert White badge of honor.

In order to help for these improvements in the Company went to the State legislature, and the bill was instrumental in getting the Federal Government to take over the park, after the state had made certain magnificent donations of land and money. On recently the Park management added more than 40,000 additional acres to the park area.

For years Cox has been the guardian angel and protector of the lands of the park, supervising its growth and making it possible for increases in rates. The Commission asked the Company about "Extended Service," which means being able to talk to near-by communities about the park. The Glades, South Bay, without the usual toll charge. In other parts of the state the same thing will apply.

The company says "heyak," and Professional Woman's club and the American Legion Auxiliary, for all of these are working in co-operation to see that it does not happen. The Elks are doing their part, the city likewise, and the Lions and the Salvation Army in distribution work. The Salvation Army list it being made the key one, from which this Christmas charity and cheer will be based.

Postmaster George Farnall states that several thousands of dollars have been spent in the purchase of Christmas gifts in the amount of $10,000.00 by the flood of such messages going through the local postoffice. The Postmaster's force already is running round to care for outgoing and incoming mail, and with the help of the Salvation Army day almost brings a conundrum to the clerks and himself. Farnall again says, "Do your mailing before silver, with a man's head on the handle, a number of solid gold beads, stars to those found at Key Mount near Ft. Myers."

I have attended many important Lodge sessions, and heard the distinguished speakers, but never before one who had the forensic ability as possessed by Grand Master Judge Max Adams, of Mayo, who spoke before the Masters of 22 lodges at the meeting at Lake Worth, last week. Born a backwoodsman, primed in the early training of the law, experienced as a judge, with a flow of gentle and punctuated words, he had the floor mounted on a beautiful picture, and anecdotes which brought out convulsions of laughter, he carried even one in higher realms by his masterful oratory.

One of our prominent farmers, as well as a stock raiser, a woman at that, in conversation over the bean market situation, made the remark, "That she was growing more meat than ever before, and against the former, for in the cattle business there were not so many hazards to combat, and stock did not have to be sold till the owner was ready to sell, or the market favored."

Washington's Lincoln's 4th of July, Labor Day and Thanksgiving day holidays are passed over to the calendar. Now we are preparing for the Christmas and New Year's celebrations. The are many features about the last named dates, one of religious sentiment and significance and the other, purely social. These two events are differently observed. For one the writer likes the Christmas entertainment period at that time. Not so sweet as those years ago. Years ago hymns as sung by the kiddies Old as I am, like the Christmas tree with its varied colored illumination, and the exchange of gifts that go with the tree.

Run across an interesting story of the early Glades which was published in the Ft. Myers Press some 43 years ago. It related the story of how Stafford Powers and William Pool, of LaBelle, discovered an ancient burial mound in the South Bay sector, while hunting out lathe shafts that could be used for agriculture. These men while walking through the scrub and grasses run across a sand mound 100 feet in dimension, and they wondered why and how is came to be there, as there were no savannas anywhere.

The mound was opened and here is the story the discoverers related at that time: "Many rare gold and silver trinkets of Spain make have been found the shell mounds and coral, particularly at Mount Key, but that mound should be discovered in the wonderful Everglades, that are at present attracting so much attention, seems remarkable and no man can account of the distance from the coast, but because it is wonderfully strange that such a spot at the new mound discovered in the saw grass south of Lake Okeechobee, should have been selected for a burial place."

The discoverer of the mound is Stafford Powers of LaBelle, who was accompanied by William Pool of the same place, Mr. Powers was in town Tuesday and showed where many trinkets dug from this mound. He said that he and Pool himself started from the rich muck, from South Bay, looking for birds which thought to grow garden truck. They had to travel three-quarters of a mile south through the saw grass when they were astonished to find this mound 100 feet in diameter. How the sand came there was a mystery, as the dense muck is too soft for any conveyance to travel over it and it is evident that the sand must have come from the shores of Lake Okeechobee.

Upon digging into the mound a few feet the decayed skeletons of many human bodies were discovered, Mr. Powers said that there were 200 bodies there. Among these decayed remains of an unknown people were found many mysterious trinkets of gold and silver, copper, glass and bone. Mr. Powers brought in some of these relics to town with him and showed them to the Press office. The relics consist of a piece of cathedral glass, Spanish coral, pearls, beads, white and blue glass beads of various designs, one solid silver bead to form a large necklace from the size of a pea to that of a pecan nut, one bead having the head of a dragon; a silver ring, two inches in height, all having several silver shields, large glass beads, some in the shape of hearts, a sickle of handheld silver, with a man's head on the handle, a number of solid gold beads, stars to those found at Key Mount near Ft. Myers."

Among these decayed remains of an unknown people were found many mysterious trinkets of gold and silver, copper, glass and bone. Mr. Powers brought in some of these relics to town with him and showed them to the Press office. The relics consist of a piece of cathedral glass, Spanish coral, pearls, beads, white and blue glass beads of various designs, one solid silver bead to form a large necklace from the size of a pea to that of a pecan nut, one bead having the head of a dragon; a silver ring, two inches in height, all having several silver shields, large glass beads, some in the shape of hearts, a sickle of hand-

Half a Century of Service To American Business

The first Certified Public Accountant Law in the United States was enacted by the State of New York in 1898. Every State and territory followed suit with similar legislation. Florida passed such a law in 1935.

These laws were enacted in recognition of a public need for the establishment of professional standards of education, experience, competence and integrity for those who would render professional services relating to accounting procedures, preparation and presentation of financial statements. Only those who have met the standard prescribed in the state statutes may use the designation, Certified Public Accountant.

The accounting profession is young in comparison with medicine and law, but Certified Public Accountants have gained their experience in a period of unusual complexity and rapid change in America. They have combined this experience with intelligent judgment to provide small, as well as large, business with the competent and confidential service so necessary for continued profitable operations.

WHAT COMPETITION DOES

One of the standard left-wing canards of the capitalist system is that it prevents monopoly and permits the small operator to be ruthlessly squeezed out by the big.

The only way that can gain credence is on Hitler's theory that a lie, often enough repeated, will seem to be the truth. For the whole tendency of American capitalism has been away from monopoly, toward more intense competition—and toward giving the small, ably managed enterprise a better chance to grow and prosper.

An interesting example of that, which is close to all consumers, is the retail store. The nearest thing we had to a retail monopoly was the old-time country general store. Whether it was good, bad or indifferent, the customers could take it or lump it—competition was freely available.

The same members made it possible for people to go considerable distances to do their shopping, and a change set in. Storekeepers had to meet both price and service competition if they were to keep their trade. Chain systems were started. Independent stores picked up the good points of chain operation and added innovation. Thus the retail stores stood alone. The result was a constantly better for consumers, and for the many kind of store which was on its toes. Every store had a competitor down the block or in the next town.

Now the consumer is offered an amazing choice when he shops—and the retailers' margins of profit on each transaction are at an extreme low. That is what competition does—and it is the underlying principle of the capitalist economic system.

A Greeting 435 Years Old

I salute you: There is nothing I can give you which you have not; but there is much, that, while I cannot give you, you can take . . . No heaven can come to us unless our hearts find rest in it today. Take Heaven . . . No peace lies in the future which is not hidden in the present. Take Peace . . . The gloom of the world's a but a shadow; behind it, yet within our reach is joy. Take Joy . . . And so at this Christmastime, I greet you, with the prayer that for you, now and forever, the day breaks and the shadows flee away.

but Dobbin had only 1 H. P.

Anybody could drive Dobbin. And when the young folks wanted to learn, why Dad, Uncle Bill or even Grandpa could give them lessons in a jiffy. But those were the horse and buggy days.

Now it's different. Dobbin's one horse power has been multiplied a hundred times—his jogging five miles per hour increased to fifty or more, and country roads have become crowded highways. Dangerous highways!

Learning to drive, the automobiles of today demands expert instruction, so that young drivers will know how to control safely the power and speed of their command. Many high schools in Florida offer driver education courses, under experienced instructors. If there's one in your community, be sure your son or daughter enrolls in it. If not, get advice from the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles in Tallahassee.

Proper training will help make new drivers—safe drivers.
